Get involved in your community and city
with the internet and free urban resources

Windmill Hill City Farm is launching a new project in January 2012. The aim is to use the internet to help people to connect with local issues and each other, to improve people's lives and enhance the community.

Would you like to be involved in something that makes use of the resources that are already available in your city and uses the internet to connect people?

By using the internet, volunteers can tell everyone where there are trees with fruit that needs picking. By using the internet, we can let local people know about local, community projects around them. If you'd like to be involved we'd love to hear from you.

There will be a steering group that helps us to decide the direction of the project, puts us in touch with the right people and helps us focus our attention on the important issues of the project. If this sounds like you please get in touch.
